P.-T. A. FEDERATION FOR COMMUNITY SERVICE PLAN

Meeting Gives Endorsement to Project; Bond Issue Under Discussion

"Community Service," as outlined by Richardson D. White and further explained by Don T. Orput of the National Community Service organization, was endorsed by the members of the Glendale Federation of Parent-Teacher associations at its meeting yesterday afternoon in the Glendale Union High school cafeteria.

Mrs. Eustace B. Moore, federation president, was in charge of the business meeting and she reported the organizing by herself and Mrs. H. V. Henry, extension chairman of the district federation, of two new parent-teacher associations, at the new Grand View school and also at the Glendale avenue intermediate. Communications were read from these two organizations requesting that they become members of the Glendale federation, which was accepted unanimously. Mrs. G. W. Finney, president of the Grand View association, was present and introduced to the association members. The business meeting opened with the flag salute led by Mrs. George Moore, patriotic chairman. Mrs. P. J. Priaulx, treasurer, reported $87.19 on hand. Various bills were read and allowed.

District Conference

Mrs. Moore announced the first district conference to be held in the high school auditorium in South Pasadena on October 26, beginning with a presidents' council at 10 o'clock and continuing until 4 o'clock in the afternoon. The subjects of membership, legislation and thrift will be discussed.

Dr. Jessie Russell, chairman of legislation of the federation, spoke on the coming elections and suggested to the presidents that if possible they have a legislative program at their meetings sometime before the election, where some of the more important matters on the ballot might be taken up for consideration. Dr. Russell also announced a meeting of all of the legislative chairmen of the various associations to be held early next week.

Richardson D. White, superintendent of city schools, gave a talk on "Community Service," and told how this originally grew out of the national playground movement,

Council Approves of Three Street Openings

The opening of Oak, Ivy and Hawthorne streets from Pacific avenue to San Fernando road was approved last night by the city council. Some arguments ensued as to whether buildings thought to be in the path of Oak street would be an obstacle. City Manager Reeves explained that the extension of the street would pass slightly to the north of them. He remarked that the extension of this street was absolutely necessary in order to take care of the rain water which now refuses to turn on Pacific avenue and floods the property to the west.

VETERAN LOAN ACT GETS SUPPORT OF EXCHANGE CLUB

Organization Promises Help in Securing Credit for Former Service Men

The Glendale Exchange club yesterday noon, at its weekly luncheon in the Broadway Inn, went on record in favor of the Veterans' Farm-Home Loan Act.

A resolution endorsing this proposition was submitted by Attorney W. Claire Anspach, of 111 East Broadway, who moved its adoption. His motion was seconded immediately by Ed. N. Radke, of 109 South Brand boulevard. Approval was unanimous. The resolution follows:

Whereas, propositions 1 and 3 appearing on the ballot in November have to do with the welfare of all veterans of any war in which the United States has participated, and,

"Whereas, These proposed measures are for the purpose of making the credit of the state available to veterans enlisted or inducted into service from this state, thereby making it possible for veterans to purchase homes, homesites or farms on a system of long-time payments and at low rates of interest, and,

Borne by Veteran

"Whereas, This organization, through investigating, finds that the proposed loans, principal, interest and administrative and incidental expenses are to be borne by the veteran and that no part of bond issue or expense of administration is at any time borne by the taxpayer, and

"Whereas, There is no feature whatever of the proposed legislation that provides for a bonus, or a gift to the veteran, but that it is entirely a business transaction which will bring about the rehabilitation of disabled ex-service men first and other ex-service men second, and will improve and make more valuable a great amount of real property in the state;

"Now, Therefore Be It Resolved, That this organization is heartily in favor of the passage of propositions 1 and 3, and does recommend to its members and to the citizenry in general that they vote in the affirmative on these propositions at the November election."

Tells of Convention

Capt. W. B. Kelly, of 106 West Colorado boulevard, gave a brief account of the national convention at Lousiville, Ky., which he attended as a delegate from the local Exchange club. He commented particularly upon the spirit of good fellowship.

"We can feel very proud that we are members of the National Exchange club," asserted President Kelly. "The Exchange club in the east is head and shoulders above every other organization. The convention was wonderful and I wouldn't have missed it for anything."

The Exchange club of Cleveland, Ohio, which has about 100 members, is doing a big work in aiding children who find their way into the juvenile court, according to Mr. Kelly.

While in Kentucky Captain Kelly visited the Mammoth Cave, which he has endorsed as one of the wonders of the world. He succeeded in winning fourth prize in a golf tournament and brought back a dozen new golf balls as a prize.

To make plans for a social evening, to which the members of the Kiwanis and Rotary clubs shall be invited a committee was appointed consisting of George A. Whitaker and D. Ripley Jackson. They were instructed to report at the next meeting.

War Mothers Plan Miscellaneous Sale

At the regular business session of the Glendale chapter of War Mothers, held yesterday afternoon in American legion hall with Mrs. J. B. Sherwood, president, in charge, plans were discussed for a miscellaneous sale to be given the first week in November. The complete list of committees who will have charge of the various concessions will be announced at the next regular meeting of the chapter on October 25.

Mrs. Maude Barrett, who has done a great deal of work for the disabled veterans of Southern California, will be the speaker at the next meeting. Mrs. Florence Padelford of 1359 North Highland avenue, Glendale, has asked that any ex-service men needing assistance to notify her.

Mrs. Ruby J. Smart, president of the Glendale chapter of the W. C. T. U. was present and gave a talk on the Wright bill. Mrs. George Hastings, chairman of the finance committee, reported that more than $14 had been made at the food sale held last week.

Remove Unsightly Wooden Poles, Is Plea to Railways

Ornamental trolley pests on Brand boulevard and Glendale avenue are being recommended most earnestly by Dr. R. M. Rossiter of 201-A West Broadway, who believes that they would add greatly to the attractiveness of the community.

A line of unsightly wooden poles fifty or sixty feet high all the way up Brand boulevard to the foothills is the first thing which greets the eye of the motorist who turns north into the main artery of Glendale, according to Dr. Rossiter.

Ornamental concrete or metal standards along the Pacific Electric right of way would do much to improve the appearance of Brand boulevard, in the opinion of Dr. Rossiter.

"While Glendale is in the making, why not bring about some improvement like that?" he inquired. "The trouble is that corporations put in what is going to make them the most money and let it go at that."

Dr. Rossiter believes that this matter should be taken up at once before the railroad right of way on Brand boulevard is paved and before unsightly wooden poles have been installed on South Glendale avenue by the Glendale & Montrose Railway.

SOUTHERN SECTION DEPOT SITE, SAYS GEORGE KARR

Gives Number of Reasons Why Proposed Location Offers Conveniences

The Southern Pacific should be invited to construct its new station on its property in Southern Glendale.

George B. Karr, manager of the Baldwin Shirt Company, at 1725 South Brand boulevard, believes that this is the most convenient location for the entire community.

"The topography of Glendale is such that the town is a big V with Brand boulevard, bisecting the triangle formed by Glendale avenue and San Fernando road," he remarked. "It is certainly a logical thing that the station should be located where these three streets come close together."

One of the principal things to be considered in the location of a depot, according to Mr. Karr, is its accessibility to its patrons. He believes that a site just far enough west of Brand boulevard to enable a train to stop there without blocking traffic would be more convenient to the entire community than any other site which could possibly be selected.

Convenient Location

This location in Mr. Karr's opinion may be reached conveniently from the territory served by the Pacific Elictric line which includes not only Glendale but Burbank and the Atwater tract and Edendale district in Los Angeles. It will be reached also from La Crescenta, Montrose and Verdugo Canyon by the new electric car line to be established on Glendale avenue. It will be served also, by the bus line connecting Hollywood and Pasadena, which passes along Los Feliz road. Another bus line connecting Los Angeles and San Fernando, passes along San Fernando road.

Because of traffic conditions in Los Angeles, residents of several nearby towns will prefer to board and leave trains at Glendale rather than go to the Arcade station. Anyhow, such is the impression of Mr. Karr, who believes that suitable depot accommodations here would bring passengers to Glendale from a considerable radius.

Whistling Station

"The trouble is that the present depot is just simply a sidetrack whistling station, with no attractive surroundings," he declared. "The darn thing is hid in 'the sticks' now and you have to go down a back alley and then you can't find it. You would be surprised at the number of people who have noticed this little dinky station in hick comedies. That is no endorsement."

Mr. Karr leaned back in his office chair and visualized an ideal station surrounded by attractive landscape gardening—similar to that at Parsons, Kans. He believes that the Southern Pacific takes sufficient pride in its property to want to see it developed.

"The purpose of a railroad station is to give service to its patrons," he reasserted. "I believe that there is a population of 10,000 within a radius of a mile of this depot site. I do not believe that the station could be located anywhere else on the right-of-way in Glendale and serve so many people."

ELKS HOLD CONTEST

SANTA MONICA, Oct. 12.—Athletic contests for state titles claimed the attention of the delegates to the eighth annual Elks' convention here today. A baseball game and golf tournament were among the championship events.

PATRICK J. CONWAY DIES AS RESULT OF AUTO CRASH

Car Overturns and Driver Is Fatally Injured; Three Children Unhurt

Patrick J. Conway of 519 Myrtle street received injuries about 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon in an automobile accident on Central avenue near Magnolia street which resulted in his death a few minutes later at the Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital.

None of the three Conway children, who were in the small touring car at the time of accident, were injured. However, they were too badly frightened to give an accurate account of the accident.

Just how the accident occurred has not been determined and Detective Sergeants W. J. Royle and E. S. Boucher are conducting a thorough investigation in order to report tomorrow at 11 o'clock to the coroner's jury which will meet in the funeral parlors of Pulliam, Kiefer & Eyerick.

Different Stories

Mr. Conway was driving south on Central avenue to get his big car which was being repaired at the Tropico Garage, 410 West Los Feliz road.

One account given by one of the children is that their car was struck on the left side by a big red touring car driven south on Central avenue by a woman who did not stop to ascertain the extent of the accident but kept on going toward Los Angeles or Hollywood.

Another theory is that Mr. Conway turned to the right to avoid a collision with another car and that his car turned over on its right side on the rough portion of the road.

Wife Notified

A telephone call to the police station was sent in by one of the residents in the neighborhood. The Pulliam, Kiefer & Eyerick ambulance was dispatched to the scene immediately and Mr. Conway, who was lying at the side of the road seriously injured but still conscious, was taken to the hospital.

Mrs. Charlotte Conway, who was watering the lawn in front of her home, was informed of "an accident" by Emil Kiefer, who went there immediately from the hospital in a touring car. She arrived at the hospital a few moments before her husband died and almost collapsed when she realized the seriousness of the accident.

Here Over Year

Mr. Conway had been a resident of Glendale for about a year and a half. He was employed as a telephone tester by one of the Los Angeles branches of the Southern California Telephone company. He was born in Wisconsin, July 21, 1885, and was 37 years old.

The three children are Billy, 5; Charles, 7; and Jack, 9.

Mr. Conway was a prominent Elk and was a member of the lodge at Duluth, Minn.

Funeral arrangements have not been made.

Red Cross Officials Make Plans for Drive

Mrs. H. E. Bartlett, chairman of the Glendale Chapter of the American Red Cross, and Mrs. John Robert White, secretary and also roll call chairman, are busily engaged in perfecting plans for the membership drive of the local organization. The national association will launch the membership drive beginning on November 11, and continuing until November 30, and the officers of the local chapter plan to have a house to house canvass made of the entire city and hope to have a much larger membership list than in previous years.

City Makes Move to Get Alley Possession

The alley east of the Pacific Electric station is to become city property, according to action taken at last night session of the city council.

"I move," remarked Councilman C. E. Kimlin, "that the city attorney be instructed to take whatever action is necessary to condemn the alley over which we now have an easement at the present time, east of the Pacific Electric station."

Juvenile Questions Will Be Considered

REALTY MEN ARE GIVEN SOME NEW SELLING IDEAS

W. Ross Campbell Speaks on 'Prospects' Before Local Board Members

Members of the Glendale Real Estate Board were given some good selling points by W. Ross Campbell at their meeting yesterday noon at the Chamber of Commerce hall. Mr. Campbell's subject was "Prospects."

The speaker is well known in Los Angeles real estate circles, and recently spoke on the same subject before the real estate school conducted under the auspices of the southern branch of the University of California.

The question of permitting bill boards in the city was discussed briefly as well as it was reported that there was developing a tendency by outsiders to overlook the present city ordinance that prohibits them. Mayor Spencer Robinson stated that the city would enforce the ordinance as requested by the realty men.

The matter of other advertising signs tacked up throughout the city on telephones poles, etc., was also brought up and discussed President C. D. Thom promised that signs on property owned by his company on Verdugo road would come down. City officials have been requested to bring a copy of the signboard ordinance to the meeting next Wednesday noon.

Pacific Electric Question

The question of the Pacific Electric moving freight trains through the heart of the city during business hours was also brought up, as it also has at a number of the other local organizations. Mayor Robinson stated that the matter was being taken up with the company officials.

President Thom then introduced Mr. Campbell, who delivered the main address.

"Prospects is a broad term," he stated, and then went on to outline the various classes. The real estate man who advertises and then waits for the prospects to come to his office was given a rub, while the fellow that advertises and also gets out and hustles was given a boost.

The subject of advertising was mentioned as a thing that must be given careful consideration by real estate men.

"We should plan our advertis-

Grand View School Housewarming Friday

An invitation to attend a "school warming," tomorrow night at the Grand View school was received with appreciation last night by the City Council.

"You are invited to a community social in the nature of a house warming for the principal and teachers of the new Grand View school on Friday night, October 13, 1922, at 8 o'clock, on the school grounds," remarks the letter, received from Mrs. Myrtle B. Buckman, secretary of the Foothill Improvement association, under whose auspices the affair will be held. "An interesting program will be given."

Mayor Spencer Robinson and other members of the council expressed their intention of attending. In order that the special council meeting planned for Friday night should not consume enough time to prevent their attendance, they remained in session last night longer than they had originally intended.

Tracks on Brand Will Be Lowered Soon, Is Belief

The tracks on Brand boulevard between Colorado street and Windsor road are to be lowered just as soon as the work can be done by the Pacific Electric.

Councilman Sam Davis, who has shown a great interest in this project, introduced the following resolution last night at the meeting of the City Council:

"That the city engineer notify the Pacific Electric that practically the entire $10,000 is in the bank for the lowering of the tracks on Brand boulevard and that the City Council agrees to be responsible for the collection of the balance when the work is completed."

Councilman Davis was informed recently that the engineering department of the Pacific Electric was ready to do the work at once as soon as it was notified that the $10,000 bonus promised was available.

Officials In Favor of 5-Inch Macadam

A desire to pave more streets with five-inch macadam and fewer with three-inch macadam was expressed last night by the City Council.

A petition was submitted from property owners requesting the paving of Palmer street west of Central avenue with three-inch macadam.

"For about ten per cent more they can get five-inch macadam," explained City Manager W. H. Reeves. "It will absolutely last twice as long as three-inch."

"Why can't we encourage them to use five-inch?" inquired Councilman C. E. Kimlin.

"I think it would be a fine idea," replied Councilman A. H. Lapham.

"Have the city engineer write them a letter," suggested Mayor Spencer Robinson.

Councilman Sam Davis expressed his approval.

The petition for the paving of Palmer street was signed by the following: Karl J. Lewis, Mrs. Bessie A. Burke, Robert Marks, Charles C. Kuhns, A. C. Sprague, Mrs. Blanche Higgenbotham, Agnes Houk, W. G. Humpfeld, Horace E. Shugrue, Dr. P. J. Lucas.

Various scheduled activities for today included the beginning of the golf tournament, in which Earl S. Patterson, Freeman P. Davis, J. S. Hayward and H. S. Webb of the Glendale lodge will participate. Tonight the local Elks bowling team will take part in the bowling contest. The local players will include Claude Caswell, James Apffel, Joseph Fortunato, E. Brown and Fred Huesman.

BIG STEAMER ON FIRE OFF PACIFIC COAST; PASSENGERS AND CREW TAKE LIFEBOATS

City of Honolulu In Flames; Several Hundred Desert Ship for Sea In Small Boats; Nearby Vessels Rushing to Rescue

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 12.—"Good-bye to all." This message, flashed by Radio Operator Sparks to the Radio Corporation here at 10:12 o'clock signalized that all aboard the City of Honolulu, which is burning, two days off the Pacific coast, had departed the stricken vessel.

Eleven minutes before, this message was received: "All left but Capt. Lester, chief officer, chief engineer and myself."

The 100 or more passengers on board and the 192 officers and crew started to leave the vessel at 9:03 o'clock. Fifteen minutes previously the boats had been lowered.

All vessels on the southern run between Honolulu and San Pedro are making for the rescue with the Enterprise leading.

Advices to the Matson Navigation company, owners of tne Enterprise, stated that the rescue vessel was between 150 and 200 miles from the point where the passengers and crew of the City of Honolulu took to their boats.

She is steaming full speed to the scene and making about eleven knots an hour. At this speed she is expected to reach the scene by sunset. She is proceeding under forced draft as her normal speed is but ten knots an hour. She was en route to San Francisco from Hilo.

She reported her position as 710 miles west of San Francisco half an hour before the call for help came from the City of Honolulu.

Recent Rough Weather

Reports to the Matson company stated that while the weather had been rough and the sea turbulent during the past few days, it had moderated to the extent that small boats can probably ride safely until the arrival of aid.

The Wilhelmina, another Matson vessel which was in radio communication with the City of Honolulu, is too far away to be of immediate assistance, as she is only one day out of Honolulu.

The shipping board liner City of Honolulu at 8:48 a. m. wirelessed the steamer Enterprise that life boats were being lowered in preparation of abandoning the burning ship.

Five minutes later a message was sent to the Enterprise saying that it was planned to leave the burning ship "any minute," and asking how soon the Enterprise could reach the scene.

The signature "Sparks" to the last radio message is one commonly adopted by radio operators under such circumstances and it is not known which of the three radio corporation men on the vessel sent the last word.

The three operators are R. P. Bell, Cole avenue, Oakland; H. P. Hancock, 2327 Louella street, Venice, Cal., and M. C. Kumler, 309 West Nachis avenue, North Yakima, Wash.

Praise Heroism

Favorable comment of their heroism in standing by to the last was heard in marine circles.

T. L. Murphy of San Francisco is purser aboard the boat. His wife left here last night for Los Angeles to meet him and to plan for a new home in the southern city.

The position of the City of Honolulu was computed at the local offices of the company as 650 miles due west of Los Angeles.

The U. S. transport Thomas, en route from Honolulu to San Francisco, reported she was about 250 miles from the scene of the fire and was making for the rescue at all speed. Her limit is about 13 knots.

The commander of the Pacific fleet at San Pedro and the commander of the Eleventh Naval district at San Diego were advised of the situation in order that they could dispatch fast destroyers to the scene if practicable.

The destroyers, it was said, were all at San Diego, and the matter of dispatching them was in the hands of Admiral Wells.

The U. S. transport Thomas later radioed after computation of positions that she would reach the scene of the fire by 1 a. m. She is making all speed possible, she reported.

A radio message to the Matson Navigation company from the Enterprise received at 11:30 o'clock but sent at 8 a. m., said she then believed it impossible to reach the City of Honolulu until daylight tomorrow. She reported she was then 242 miles from the scene of the fire. The message had been relayed by other vessels and it was said communication with the Enterprise from shore direct was difficult.

It is believed that the U. S.

WALTER DODGE IS HURT BOXING IN LOCAL RING

Breaks Bone In Right Hand After Putting Up Best Scrap of Career

After fighting the best bout of his career, Walter Dodge, local 110-pound boxer and usually a mediocre performer, last night broke a bone in his right hand in the final round of his match with Jack Price, boxing trainer of the Columbia Athletic club of Los Angeles. With the game Walt unable to further use the injured paw his seconds were forced to toss the sponge into the ring, automatically awarding the verdict to Price, who would have been lucky to have obtained a draw had the battle gone its regular course.

Although the Dodge-Price go was not scheduled as the main event it nevertheless proved to be the best and most spectacular of the evening. Instead of rushing in and using up all of his energy in the first two rounds, as has always been his main fault, the local mitt artist made his early licks count, with the result that he had piled up a big lead over his brown-skinned opponent at the end of the second session.

At this juncture, however, Price realized that he had misjudged his man and started out in the third with a vengeance. At the end of this round both men's faces were smeared with blood, each having landed several solid wallops.

A return match between this pair would prove highly popular with the fans.

Main Event Farce

The main event of the card proved to be a farce, Joe Laumann of Inglewood apparently becoming afraid of Joe Kelly's punches and falling to the floor after two minutes of boxing in the opening round. Remaining on the floor until the count of "ten" had been pronounced by Referee David Black, Laumann suddenly regained his pep and skipped out of the ring. At this stage the day was saved by Young Stone of Glendale, who volunteeered to box a two-round exhibition match with Kelly, who is boxing instructor at the Los Angeles high school.

Dave Casa Grande stamped himself as a game and willing slugger, able to take all sorts of punishment, with little or no knowledge of the rudiments of the game. He was easily outpointed in his bout with Kid Harris of Los Angeles, whose continued attempts at a knockout were to no avail. With the proper tutoring Casa Grande should become one of the best 140-pounders in this neck of the woods.

In the two preliminaries "Midget Joe" Rivers won a decision from "Young Ad" Wolgast in a snappy bout, while Kid Sardine and Joe Burns battled through four torrid rounds to a draw.

Manager C. L. Hare and Matchmaker O. M. Clinton of the local organization of the Modern Woodmen of America are making every effort possible to place boxing at an attractive level in Glendale and are deserving of the support of the sporting public of the city. The bouts are held every Wednesday night in the Yeoman hall, 1500 South San Fernando road, where every facility has been arraanged for ring events.

"Ball players were never better treated than they are right now," Mr. Heydler declared.

MORE POSTOFFICE HELP

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Postmaster General Work today authorized the appointment of additional postoffice clerks at the following postoffices of the country: San Francisco, eight; Oakland, four; Long Beach, three.

Miller Huggins to Stay Another Year

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—His decision hastened by criticism from within and without the club, Colonel Jacob Ruppert has announced the retention of Miller Huggins as manager of the New York Yankees for another season. It is the colonel's answer to critics in general and to the anti-Huggins element inside the club.

The premature announcement that Huggins was to be let out was prompted by the fact that those opposed to him, passively rather than actively, had hoped the indifferent showing of the club in the recent world series would convince Ruppert that Huggins was not the man for the job.

Instead, the storm of rumor and criticism only served to make Ruppert adamant. He wanted to convince the baseball public that he and his partner, Huston, were running the club. He has done just that, perhaps at the cost of the pennant next year.

The Yanks as constituted probably will not win for Huggins next season. They need a ring master who can apply the whip when necessary. Huggins is not that kind, and never will be. He is a student, quiet, conservative and inconspicuous—but withal a good baseball man.

The Yanks have never understood him, but they have tolerated him as long as the club could win pennants. With the memory of their debacle in the world series fresh in their minds the players' morale may need considerable prodding next year and Huggins is not only a poor driver but quite unpopular with his men.

To give Huggins a white man's chance, there is only one thing to do: To rid the club of men who have outlived their usefulness under his leadership. One of these, a pitcher and disturber, is already slated to go.

Here we have Manager McGraw of the Giants and Manager Huggins of the Yankee conferring before the start of the game. McGraw is on the right.

Moran and Beckett Will Clash Tonight

LONDON, Oct. 12.—Two battered veterans of the prize ring will meet here tonight. They are Frank Moran, of Pittsburgh, former aspirant for the world's heavyweight championship, and Joe Beckett, of England. Beckett is a 7 to 5 favorite in the betting.

Moran has been training at Maiden Hall. He says he is in tip-top condition and that if he wins he will challenge Battling Siki, the negro, who recently beat Georges Carpentier in Paris.

Joe Beckett has done his training at Southampton.

Moran has defeated Beckett in the ring before, but the Englishman is favored in the odds this time because of reports of Moran's erratic system of training.

Nothing will be more generally worn this fall and winter than the three-piece suit—a dress with coat to match.

SPORTS CHATTER

By BILL UNMACK
PACIFIC SPORTS SERVICE

Harry Will's latest showing can hardly be taken as indicative that the muchly touted "Black Panther" is worthy of a match with Jack Dempsey for the world title. And yet there seems to be a growing demand for such a match.

That it took Wills twelve rounds to put over the K. O. punch on Clem Johnson, another colored boxer of positively unproved quantity, does not speak any too well for Will's ability. That Wills showed little or nothing is also evidenced from the reports that he was roundly booed by the crowd.

Wills to date has never shown anything that can be taken as demonstrating his fitness for a world champion contender. He has several very shady contests against him, notably one in Denver and another in Portland, Ore., as late as last January. In Portland he fought another colored boxer, Bill Tate, and the fight was so raw and looked so crooked that the crowd was not backward in showing its distaste. A few days later the men met again and fought without any admission charge. It was a battle that showed little science, plenty of wild swinging and the referee called it a draw though the consensus of ringsiders who know said that Tate was entitled to the decision. Tate is no world beater and yet Wills is touted as meat for a world title scrap. Also this year, last month, Wills K. O.'d Tut Jackson in three rounds, another boxer of little or no fame and now his latest victory over another unknown, Clem Johnston.

It would seem that negroes are being pointed for another world title in the heavy division. Within a few days of each other we have the case of Battling Siki relieving Georges Carpentier of the world light heavyweight title, and now Harry Wills, knighted as the world heavyweight colored champion. There is only one chance in a million that either of those colored men can lick Dempsey and then Jack would have to break a leg or some other castastrophe happen to him.

If we judge on the performances of the men, it would seem that by his victory over Georges Carpentier, that Battling Siki has a better claim to a match with Dempsey than has Wills, but the logical thing to be done, and which Tex Rickard is evidently aiming for is an elimination contest between Siki and Wills. European boxing followers have expressed themselves that Wills is too good for Siki. If that is the case the great Frenchman must have deteriorated considerably. It is hardly likely that a man of Wills' poor ability could have defeated Carpentier at the time the latter fought Dempsey, and yet they say that Wills right now could beat Siki. No matter what way you figure it, it does not look as though all the Harry Wills, the Battling Sikis or any other negro at this time is capable of relieving the world crown from Jack Dempsey, but Siki is young and it is hard to tell what the future may have in store.

The Short Crucible
By Davis J. Walsh
International News Service Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Oct. 12. — The old and time-honored "wolf cry," a piteous, heartfelt bleat, has gone out from under the New Haven elms, where they had a regular he-man football team until a few days ago. The team, so it now appears, is club-footing its way about the Yale bowl on crutches and most certainly is in a most deplorable state.

Of course this has nothing whatever to do with the fact that Tad Jones' eleven is to play Howard Jones' Iowa outfit in the big bowl on Saturday. The date is without significance. The boys have merely gone and got themselves injured at an inconvenient moment and Yale, perforce, cannot expect too much from them at this time.

Believe us, if Yale starts the team that is now playing as the varsity, Iowa State will go back to its home with the victory. It has seven veterans of the original eleven that rushed through the western conference to the title last year, and although the departed ones are none other than the two Devines, Slater and Belding, the end, Howard Jones has developed some good men to fill in the vacancies.

Perkins, a high school star of 1920, is attempting to fill Aubrey Devine's all-American shoes at quarterback. It is a large order, but Perkins is doing well and has won the place over Shuttleworth, second string quarter last year.

Belding's place at one of the wings has gone to Hancock, who packs 195 pounds on the hoof and can beat 11 seconds for a hundred yards. A piano-mover type of football player, name Engledinger, weight 210 pounds, has caught on in the tackle position of the famous Slater.

From middle western sources we learned that Iowa's original hope was to hold Yale to ten points. That will not be necessary with O'Hearn and Jordan out of the lineup, for the kicking and passing game is built around this pair for the most part. The only other ball runner worthy of mention is Neidlinger, who should be one of the great backs of the year. He is being shifted to quarterback for the game and the change may impair his effectiveness. At any rate O'Hearn's punting will be missed.

It is doubtful whether Yale can score more than one touchdown, if that, against a good football team with Jordan and O'Hearn on the sidelines.

BANDIT ROBS 7 ON CALIF. LIMITED

Negro Routs Passengers From Berths; Takes $500 In Money, Jewelry

CHICAGO, Oct. 12.—Seven passengers on an eastbound Santa Fe California limited train were routed from their berths late last night by a negro bandit and robbed of money and jewels, according to information received at the offices of the Santa Fe here early today. The robbery occurred near Kansas City, ten minutes after the train had left that point for Chicago.

Posses, organized near Lexington, Mo., are combing the countryside for the bandit who jumped from the train at the first stop out of Kansas City.

Armed with two revolvers, the bandit, whose face was covered with a handkerchief mask, went through two Pullman coaches methodically hauling the passengers from their berths and taking their belongings. He tore rings from the fingers of women.

The men passengers had no opportunity for resistance. The conductor did not order the train stopped.

Santa Fe officials, informed of the robbery by telegraph, hastened to a gathering point at Fort Madison, Iowa. Meanwhile, posses were being organized at Marceline, Mo., and other points along the line.

Secures About $500

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 12.—Approximately five hundred dollars was the amount taken from passengers by the negro bandit who robbed the eastbound California limited of the Santa Fe railroad in the yards here last night, according to official report of the conductor of the train made to officials of the road here this morning.

Officials of the road announced that in a report received from the conductor at Lexington, Mo., this morning he stated that seven persons were robbed, six men and one woman.

While posses and railroad officers are scouring the Missouri countryside police here were combing this city in the belief that the bandit is still within the city limits.

After completing his robberies, the negro jumped from the train at the Fifteenth street crossing, according to train employes. Officials at the yardmaster's office stated today that trains do not put on full speed until they pass Sheffield and that the condition of the track between Sheffield and Fifteenth street viaduct is such that a person may jump from a moving train with safety.

AWAIT TIME FOR ECONOMIC MEET

Harding and Advisers Not Yet Ready to Summon World Conference

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
For International News Service.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 12.—President Harding is willing to call an international economic conference any time the world conditions appear to be favorable to the success of such a gathering.

But absolutely no steps toward launching such a project will be taken by this government until the president and his advisers are convinced that conditions are such that the world's economic problems will yield to peaceful settlement around the conference table as did the world's naval problems at the armament conference last winter.

This was the explanation put forward in official quarters today for renewed reports in foreign capitals that the United States would shortly inaugurate a second Washington conference—to deal this time with the economic problems that have brought Europe to the verge of another war. So circumstantial were the reports that from Tokio came press dispatches reporting the Japanese government as anticipating such an invitation and willing to accept it.

Conditions Not Favorable

While entirely willing to undertake such a project—in the same spirit that actuated the calling of the armament conference—it is nevertheless the unanimous opinion of the president and his closest advisers that world conditions are not now favorable to the success of any international conference, whether inaugurated by America or some other nation.

And, until conditions abroad become more settled, it was said today, the United States will pursue its present policy of aiding Europe's rehabilitation wherever possible and in such ways as to bring no involvement in European bickering and politics.

Severe pressure has been brought to bear on the administration to "dip in" abroad. It has come not only from abroad, but also from American bankers who believe that without American participation in European councils, Europe is doomed.

F. A. Estock Opens 'The Old Book Shop'

Glendalians have the opportunity to do some real book browsing with the opening of "The Old Book Shop," at 114 South Maryland, by F. A. Estock, a recent arrival from Portland, Ore.

A book for everyone for every mood is Mr. Estock's plan for developing his shop, and he already has a foundation of over 3000 books, old and new, fiction and non-fiction, some for sale and others for rent.

In addition to books he carries stationary supplies, back numbers of current magazines, used phonograph records and prints.

Prince of Wales to Study Own Country

LONDON—Putting aside foreign tours for the time being, the prince of Wales will devote the year 1923 to personal investigation of England's social and industrial problems.

To achieve this he will make tours of many of the largest cities and manufacturing districts. His social engagements will be mainly fitted in with these trips. For instance, when he goes to stay with Lord Derby at Knowsley Hall next March in order to see the race for the Grand National, the visit will be so arranged that he will be able to inspect the new dock extensions and other improvements at Liverpool and also the present circumstances of the city of Manchester.

Already he has received numerour invitations from towns throughout Britain to call and make their acquaintance, and so far as he is able he will do so.

While on his world cruise the prince carefully studied an extensive library of books devoted to social conditions and reforms, and he intends to obtain further enlightenment by attending the weekly meetings of the London county council, the body which is responsible for the welfare of the eight million inhabitants of Greater London.

The period until Christmas, 1922, will be devoted to the prince's holiday, upon which the physicians have been insisting for the past three years. He will spend most of this time hunting and has taken Easton Grey House, Malmesbury, for six months, where he will hunt regularly with the duke of Beaufort's pack.

What is believed to be the largest camera in the world is owned by a scientist in Chicago. The camera body is nine feet, four inches wide, twenty feet long, when fully extended, and six feet high. The lens cost $1500 and is twelve inches in diameter. All moving parts run on roller bearings. The plate weighs nearly 500 pounds when loaded and a derrick is used to put it into the camera. The plates are eight feet long by four feet, eight inches wide and weigh more than 200 pounds. A man enters the camera to dust the plates.

Many Study 'Freak Tree' in Ohio City

ELYRIA, O.—That electricity can resuscitate as well as kill is the belief voiced by Clarence Nichols here.

Nichols' apple tree was killed by lightning. Then it was restored to life by electrical current.

The tree, which stands near the street, is attracting scores of curious spectators. It is literally covered with blossoms and bears twenty-ounce apples.

Lightning hit near the tree this summer. Immediately the apples fell off, the leaves turned brown and fell to the ground, while the branches died, apparently.

Then Chris Brown opened a bakery. While wiring the store, electricians encircled the tree with the wire. Nichols was ready to cut the tree down for fuel when he noticed the limbs were turning green and buds were popping out from the branches.

Frosts, however, are expected to destroy the tree's second crop of apples this year.

LARGEST SHIP SIZE

To convey the size of the new Majestic, the largest ship in the world, the following statistics are given. Its tonnage equals that of the entire Spanish Armada which attempted to conquer England in 1588; the interior space squals that of 400 eight-room houses.

Shark Meat Saves Crew on Long Trip

LOS ANGELES—Only the capture of a ten-foot shark off the west coast of Mexico saved the lives of the seventeen members of the crew and Captain R. J. Healey of the auxiliary schooner Moonlite, which arrived here recently from Newport News after one of the longest voyages on record.

Facing death by starvation, when they ran out of food, members of the crew successfully angled and caught the huge shark, cut the meat into strips and cooked it.

Man Wondering Now If He Is So Lucky

MARTINS FERRY, Ohio — Charles Hanson told W. W. Stein, president of the local Kiwanis club, that he wanted to give an attendance prize at a meeting of the club and offered one hundred bushels of coal.

President Stein persuaded Hanson to make it only fifty bushels, saying that fifty bushels constituted a very large prize.

Hanson complied with the request.

FUSSING ABOUT MONEY

A neighbor of mine was going down street the other day and I asked her if she would stop at the postoffice and get me five stamps.

When she came back with the stamps and I started to hand her the money she drew back. "Oh, don't bother about a little thing like that," she said. And then, as I naturally insisted that she should not be charged ten cents for the privilege of doing an errand, she still protested. So foolish of me to bother about such a little sum, as if I didn't do things for her, etc. It wasn't until we had talked about the matter for several minutes that she accepted the money.

I hate that sort of thing, don't you?

Be Matter of Fact

I hate fussing about money. The best bred people are always most simple and matter of fact in regard to money, small sums as well as large. And I think that is the way to be.

The natural thing was that having asked that woman to buy me something I should pay for it. Had she been moved to come over and make me a present of five stamps that would have been one thing. I should have tried to accept it gracefully. But she would scarcely have done that and I can see no more reason why she should try to do it because I asked her to do an errand. Of course the inevitable result of yielding to her and letting her pay for the privilege of doing an errand would be that I should not want to ask her to do an errand again. Unless she wanted to accomplish that result I think it was silly of her to try to avoid payment.

Making a fuss in public as to who shall pay a carfare, or for a theatre ticket, or an ice cream soda is another sign of lack of breeding. Well bred people simply wouldn't share their affairs with the public or put that much emphasis on the matter any more than they would go about telling what things cost or how much money they made.

I noticed in a recent book of etiquette that men are not supposed to offer to pay woman's expenses as much as they once used to. If a man sits down beside a woman on the train he is not supposed to offer to pay her fare. Or, if she starts to buy something from a vendor, he does not try to pay for it. I suppose there are some women who will regret this, but on the whole I think women will be glad of it.

What You'd Like to Do Yourself

It seems to me that the right way to handle any situation between friends involving money, small or large, is simply naturally and in the do-as-you'd-be-done-by spirit. If you borrow a book from a friend which she has taken from the lending library you naturally want to pay for the days you keep it. Else you will not feel free to borrow again. All right, if she borrows one from you under the same conditions, grant her the same privilege without fuss or feathers. And so in all such matters. As usual, if you will let it, the Golden Rule points the way.

MUSIC AND SINGING CERTAIN TO MAKE NATION WHOLESOME

John Richard Jones, Who Handles Big Crowds, Says Oppression Flees Before Songs

By KENNETH HARRIS
For International News Service

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—This city has what is known as a "master of assemblies." He is John Richard Jones.

Jones makes a business of handling large crowds. He trained a chorus of more than 500 voices, picked from Kansas City churches, which participated in two pageants presented in connection with the convention of the International Sunday School association, held here last June. Those who have seen Jones stand before a mighty audience, as he sometimes does in conducting "community" singing, and have watched him sway the vast throng until they eagerly responded to every caprice of his leadership agree that he has an uncanny knack for controlling crowds.

Jones hails from Festiniog, Wales, which is within sight of the seaside home of Lloyd George, Prime Minister of Great Britain. Early in life he exhibited a love for music. His native village maintains a military concert band of 100 pieces and the Mount Moelwyn male voice choir.

A music festival called Eisteddfod is held annually, in which all Wales takes interest. The Welshman hopes to be able to participate in this festival some day.

Educated at the University of Wales, at Aberystwyth, Jones came to America about fifteen years ago. He studied music with David Jenkins, Eben Prout and Paul Le Vallon.

Jones maintains that Wales would long ago have been crushed beneath oppression and tyranny if its people had not been able to inspire one another with song.

Music is the handmaid of religion, according to Jones. He holds that the high morals of the Welsh are attributable to a large extent to their intense fondness for music.

"The fires of optimism and patriotism have been kept burning in the hearts of the Welsh people by their mass singing, which is almost a daily custom in all sections of Wales," Jones explained.

Music in the home and plenty of singing will further a wholesome future for America, in the opinion of Jones.

Broiled Deviled Oysters—Wash thoroughly and wipe dry on clean towel, twenty-four large oysters, season with a sprinkling of salt and pepper, lightly roll in two tablespoons butter, one-half teaspoon dry mustard, one teaspoon white vinegar, one teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, one-eighth teaspoon salt, a few grains of cayenne and the yolk of one egg, which have been thoroughly mixed together; roll in bread crumbs, place on buttered broilers and broil for five minutes on each side. Remove to hot dish and serve hot.

Spanish Rice—Heat two tablespoons butter in frying pan, add one tablespoon finely chopped onion, one small green pepper, finely chopped and six olives chopped, cook five minutes, stirring constantly, then add one and three-fourths cups stewed tomatoes and cook until moisture has nearly evaporated. Add one-half teaspoon salt, one tablespoon capers and a few grains of cayenne pepper. Pour over hot boiled rice and serve.

Coffee Sponge—Soak two tablespoons gelatine in four tablespoons cold water and add two cups strong hot coffee, then add one cup sugar and strain into bowl of ice water, cool slightly, then beat, using a wire whish until quite stiff. Add the whites of three eggs, beaten until stiff and continue the beating until the mixture will hold its shape. Turn into a mold, first dipped in cold water. Chill thoroughly, remove from mold and serve with sugar and cream.

Puree of Beans—Soak two cups of dry beans over night in cold water to cover. Drain, add three quarts of cold water, bring to the boiling pint and let simmer until soft, then force through a puree strainer. Put one and one-half tablespoons butter in frying pan, add one onion, sliced, one slice of carrot, one slice of turnip, a bit of bay leaf and one sprig of parsley and simmer five minutes; add one and one-half tablespoons flour and cook one minute, then add it to soup with one-half teaspoon salt and a few grains of cayenne. Serve hot.

Fried Apples—Peel and core three large, good, sound apples. Slice them into slices one-half inch thick. Dip them in cold milk and then roll them in flour. Melt two tablespoons butter in frying pan. Place the apples in the pan and fry until a nice golden brown on both sides, or two minutes for each side. Remove them with a skimmer and place them on hot plates. Sprinkle with a little powdered sugar and serve.

Farina Pudding Souffle—Place two cups milk in saucepan with one tablespoon sugar, and one-half teaspoon vanilla extracts, then, as soon as it comes to a boil add one-third cup of farina, constantly stirring while adding it, let boil five minutes, remove from fire and let cool slightly, then add the yolks of four eggs and stir them in well. Beat the whites of four eggs until stiff and cut and fold them into preparation. Pour into buttered dish and place the dish in a large dish, pour hot water in the dish up to half the height of dish containing pudding, set in the oven and slowly cook for thirty-five minutes. Serve with any preferred sauce.

ANSWERS TO COR RESPONDENTS

My Dear Followers:

When sending for material which we offer you, please remember always to enclose a stamped envelope bearing your name and address. The pamphlet on reducing and gaining is the only one for which you must enclose four cents in stamps extra. Address your letters to me in care of this paper and please remember that, on account of the hundreds of letters received in every mail, I cannot make personal replies. I appreciate very much the beautiful personal letters you send me and regret it is impossible to give you individual advice. The questions you ask will be answered in the column as soon as possible, if they are of general interest; for the rest you must consult your personal physicians.

Mrs. A. B. P.—Whooping cough has no fixed length or course. Six weeks is about its average duration but it may run longer or shorter. It is highly infectious and, because it lowers the resistance markedly, it is a dangerous disease. It really should be a quarantined disease. Sooner or later this will be recognized by health boards.

If you will make a long abdominal binder of some elastic material for your child and wrap it around his abdomen, you will find it makes him more comfortable and will give him a feeling of something supporting him when he coughs. It also lessens the danger of rupture and will lessen the vomiting spells and so help keep up his nourishment. After every vomiting spell a child should have a drink of warm, nourishing cream soup or milk. Don't forget this. The reason the disease lasts so long in some cases is because children get so run down in nourishment.

There is a bandage manufactured, made of Sea Island cotton especially woven and especially made, which sells for about a dollar. If you will send a stamped addressed envelope we will give you the name of the manufacturer.

H. B.—Isn't it perfectly glorious that you have lost that hateful 50 pounds by following our course. It must give you a great deal of satisfaction to know that you can out-swim those young competitors and that some of your friends don't know you because you look so much younger.

The reduction of your blood pressure from 188 to 120, 68 points, is wonderful. From my experience I can state very positively that overweight individuals who are suffering from high blood pressure can be absolutely assured that the blood pressure will go down markedly with the reduction of weight. For those of you who are interested in blood pressure, we have an article you may have.

Mrs. E. S.—Moles are congenital. That is, one is born with them as a rule. The little moles on your child's face are growing because she is growing and they will stop growing when she stops growing.

They can be destroyed by electrolysis, radium, acids, freezing with liquid air and other methods. This should be done by a skin specialist if it is done at all.

Sometimes in the latter half of life certain types of moles may become cancerous and they should be watched. If they are in a position where they are irritated they should certainly be removed. I am glad to know that you have lost 30 pounds.

Reader—If you will apply to your city health department they will fumigate your house and rid it of vermin, or they will instruct you how to do it.

T. P. W.—Your asthma is undoubtedly increased and made worse by your smoking so much. There are different types of asthma and I shall have a paper on it soon. But until then will you remember that asthma is influenced very much by the diet. You acknowledge that you eat a very heavy meal at night and that you always suffer from asthma very much afterwards. Why don't you rearrange your meals and eat a light meal at night? Overeating of certain elements, and incorrect diet in other ways, markedly affects asthma of all types.

M. S. M.—There are so many causes of headaches that you may need a complete physical examination to determine the cause of yours. Meanwhile look well to your diet and general habits and correct any that you know are wrong. More on headaches later.

BEAUTY CHATS

By Edna Kent Forbes

A COLD CREAM FORMULA

My old readers will be familiar with the formula for cold cream which I am giving today, but perhaps among my new readers there are some who do not know this and who would like to make it. It is easy to make and the best cleansing and nourishing cream that I know.

Rose water .....4 ounces
Almond oil or olive oil, 4 ounces
Spermaceti .....1 ounce
White wax .....1 ounce
Benzoin .....1 drachm

If you use even a moderate amount of care in making this you cannot possibly go wrong. Melt the wax and the spermaceti with the oil, keeping them over the heat just long enough to blend them, do not get them too hot.

In a separate pan slightly warm the rosewater with the benzoin. When the oil and waxes are completely blended remove from the heat and slowly pour the benzoin and rose water into the melted oils. Stir and beat with a spoon the entire time as this makes a whiter cream. Use a wooden, enamel or silver spoon. Continue the beating until the cream begins to congeal, it will grow whitish and thicken. When it is about the consistency of cream or mayonnaise pour off into previously washed jars.

This will give you a light delicious cream, but if the ingredients are heated too long, or too hot, or if the mass congealed too much before being poured off into jars the cream will curdle. It will be quite all right to use although a little stiff to work into the skin. It is sometimes possible to reheat it and work it again into the proper light mass but often too much rosewater has evaporated or too much oil has escaped during the curdling process, in which case the reheating does no good.

Miss Brand:—Oily hair indicates a weakness of the secreting glands in the scalp. To cure one must get the scalp into a healthy condition. You can relieve the unpleasant condition by dusting the hair with powder every time the hair is too oily to arrange becomingly. But never overdo this habit as it is apt to cover the hair with a scum which will keep it from coming in contact with the air. Use only a little powder and shake it all out again as soon as it has absorbed some of the oil.

Key:—Bleach the skin on your arms by rubbing into it either lemon or cucumber juice.

W. M.:—When light hair becomes ashen in shade, add the juice of half of a lemon to the last rinse of the shampoo and dry the hair in the sun.

Tomorrow—Healthy Teeth

All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes in care of the "Beauty Chats" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So, if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question.—The Editor.

Book Reviews

Francis R. Bellamy, whose new novel, "A Flash of Gold" (Doubleday, Page & Co.) appeared on Sept. 8, has chosen as a background for his story just such a small industrial city as the one in which he makes his home. Since he was a small boy Mr. Bellamy has lived in Rochester. He also drew it as "Melchester" in his first novel, "The Balance." Mr. Bellamy's first inclination was toward the stage. Ever since the days of "barn shows," with "5 pins admission," he has written plays and comic operas. After he left college and tried farming long enough to know that he didn't like it, he went to New York and wrote successful vaudeville sketches. But the scenes of this first novel, written by snatches in sleeping cars, hotels and station lunch rooms, while he was a young book salesman, determined Mr. Bellamy to abandon the drama for fiction.

"Atolls of the Sun," Frederick O'Brien's new South Seas book which has been long promised a public which no spoofing of South Seas stuff can turn, so far as O'Brien's stuff is concerned, is to be ready very shortly, the Century company announces. Mr. O'Brien has had the book all but ready for some time, we understand, but between its first swift writing and its revision for publication the wanderlust took him again, and he has been on yet other voyages. The book is precisely the satisfactory and rather extraordinary mixture that "White Shadows In the South Seas" and "Mystic Isle In the South Seas" presented—a poet's appreciation of beauty; the reflections of a somewhat quizzical and wistful philosopher, never dogmatic, upon the strange sections of life he sees spread before him; the narrative of a born adventurer and the appreciations of a good fellow and a raconteur.

JAPAN RAILWAYS

In connection with other railway electrification the Japanese government has decided to electrify the entire Tokio-Kobe trunk line, obtaining power from private companies.

MINIATURE CANNON

A miniature cannon using shotgun shells has been invented by a resident of Alabama as a burglar alarm, being fired when string attached to a plunger spring are broken.

Using gasoline for fuel, a new blow torch and soldering iron also can be used to cook food.

MULES IN MINES

Mules that have remained in the mines far underground for 20 years without seeing daylight retain their eyesight when brought to the surface. This is vouched for by veterinarians in the anthracite region in Pennsylvania.

HOUSE HAS HISTORY

The office of a gasoline service station is located where a storehouse of military supplies and a magazine existed when Bedford, Pa., was a frontier post in the eighteenth century. It was a little stone house almost hidden among several low, rambling frame sheds. During the whisky rebellion in 1794 more than 5000 troops were quartered on the grounds adjoining it and President Washington and his first cabinet were once established a block away. The old house was also used as a detention place for escaped slaves who were caught on the underground railway.

"Miss Harding," he said, respectfully, "I cannot blame you for the feeling of loathing and distrust you must harbor toward me; but in common justice I think you should hear me before finally condemning."

"I cannot imagine," she returned coldly, "what defense there can be for the cowardly act you perpetrated."

"I have been utterly deceived by my employers," said Theriere, hastening to take advantage of the tacit permission to explain which her reply contained. "I was given to understand that the whole thing was to be but a hoax—that I was taking part in a great practical joke that Mr. Divine was to play upon his old friends, the Hardings and their guests. Until they wrecked and deserted the Lotus in mid-ocean I had no idea that anything else was contemplated, although I felt that the matter, even before that event, had been carried quite far enough for a joke."

"They explained," he continued, "that before sailing you had expressed the hope that something really exciting and adventurous would befall the party—that you were tired of the monotonous humdrum of twentieth-century existence—that you regretted the decadence of piracy, and the expunging of romance from the seas.

"Mr. Divine, they told me, was a very wealthy young man, to whom you were engaged to be married, and that he could easily afford the great expense of the rather remarkable hoax we were supposed to be perpetrating. I saw no harm in taking part in it, especially as I knew nothing of the supposititious purpose of the cruise until just before we reached Honolulu. Before that I had been led to believe that it was a pleasure trip to the South Pacific that Mr. Divine intended.

"You see, Miss Harding, that I have been as badly deceived as you. Won't you let me help to atone for my error by being your friend? I can assure you that you will need one whom you can trust amongst this shipload of scoundrels."

"Who am I to believe?" cried the girl. "Mr. Divine assures me that he, too, has been forced into this affair, but by threats of death rather than deception."

The expression on Mr. Theriere's face was eloquent of sarcastic incredulity.

"How about the note of introduction that I carried to your father from Mr. Divine?" asked Theriere.

"He says that he was compelled to write it at the point of a revolver," replied the girl.

"Come with me, Miss Harding," said the officer. "I think that I may be able to convince you that Mr. Divine is not on any such bad terms with Skipper Simms as would be the case were his story to you true."

As he spoke he started toward the companionway leading to the officers' cabins. Barbara Harding hesitated at the top of the stairway.

"Have no fear, Miss Harding," Theriere reassured her. "Remember that I am your friend and that I am merely attempting to prove it to your entire satisfaction. You owe it to yourself to discover as soon as possible who your friends are aboard this ship, and who your enemies.

"Very well," said the girl. "I can be in no more danger one place aboard here than another."

Theriere led her directly to his own cabin, cautioning her to silence with upraised forefinger. Softly, like skulking criminals, they entered the little compartment. Then Theriere turned and closed the door, slipping the bolt noiselessly as he did so. Barbara watched him, her heart beating rapidly with fear and suspicion.

"Here," whispered Theriere, motioning her toward his berth. "I have found it advantageous to know what goes on beyond this partition. You will find a small round hole near the head of the berth, about a foot above the bedding. Put your ear to it and listen—I think Divine is in there now."

The girl, still frightened and fearful of the man's intentions, did, nevertheless, as he bid. At first she could make out nothing beyond the partition but a confused murmur of voices, and the clink of glass, as of the touch of the neck of a bottle against a goblet. For a moment she remained in tense silence, her ear pressed to the tiny aperture. Then, distinctly, she heard the voice of Skipper Simms.

"I'm a-tellin' you, man," he was saying, "that there wa'n't nothin' else to be done, an' I'm a-gettin' damn sick o' hearin' you findin' fault all the time with the way I been a-runnin' o' this little job."

"I'm not finding fault, Simms," returned another voice which the girl recognized immediately as Divine's; "although I do think that it was a mistake to so totally disable the Lotus as you did. Why, how on earth are we ever to return to civilization if that boat is lost? Had she been simply damaged a little, in a way that they could themselves have fixed up, the delay would have been sufficient to permit us to escape, and then, when Miss Harding was returned in safety to her father, after our marriage, they would have been so glad to be reunited that he easily could have been persuaded to drop the matter. Then another thing; you intended to demand a ransom for both Miss Harding and myself, to carry out the fiction of my having been stolen also—how can you do that if Mr. Harding be dead? And do you suppose for a moment that Miss Harding will leave a single stone unturned to bring the guilty to justice if any harm has befallen her father or his guests? If so you do not know her as well as I."

The girl turned away from the partition, her face white and drawn, her eyes inexpressibly sad. She rose to her feet, facing Theriere.

"I have heard quite enough, thank you, Mr. Theriere," she said.

"You are convinced then that I am your friend?" he asked.

"I am convinced that Mr. Divine is not," she replied noncommittally.

She took a step toward the door. Theriere stood looking at her. She was unquestionably very good to look at. He could not remember ever having seen a more beautiful girl. A great desire to seize her in his arms swept over the man. Theriere had never often made any effort to harness his desires. What he wanted it had been his custom to take—by force if necessary. He took a step toward Barbara Harding. There was a sudden light in his eyes that the girl had not seen before, and she reached quickly toward the knob of the door.

Theriere was upon her, and then, quickly he mastered himself, for he recalled his coolly thought-out plan based on what Divine had told him of that clause in the will of the girl's departed grandparent which stipulated that the man who shared the bequest with her must be the choice of both herself and her father. He could afford to bide his time, and play the chivalrous protector before he essayed the role of lover.

Barbara had turned a half-frightened look toward him as he advanced—in doubt as to his intentions.

"Pardon me, Miss Harding," he said; "the door is bolted—let me unlatch it for you," and very gallantly he did so, swinging the portal wide that she might pass out. "I feared interruption," he said, in explanation of the bolt.

In silence they returned to the upper deck. Then intoxication of sudden passion now under control, Theriere was again master of himself and ready to play the cold, calculating, waiting game that he had determined upon. Part of his play was to see just enough of Miss Harding to insure a place in her mind at all times; but not enough to suggest that he was forcing himself upon her. Rightly, he assumed that she would appreciate thoughtful deference to her comfort and safety under the harrowing conditions of her present existence more than a forced companionship that might entail too open devotion on his part. And so he raised his cap and left her, only urging her to call upon him at any time that he might be of service to her.

What Do You Know of Your Country's History?

Professor Albert Bushnell Hart, of Harvard University, has submitted the following twelve questions to readers of the Mentor Magazine in a prize contest. Professor Hart says that any high school student should be able to answer them after a little time in a reference library, and that a well-informed adult should be able to answer them off hand. Can you?

1. Who were the first white discoverers to set foot on territory now known as the United States—Atlantic, Pacific, and Gulf Coasts—and when and where did they land?
2. Who were the following, and what part did they play in American history? Tecumseh? Osceola? Sacagawea? Massasoit? Powhatan? Red Jacket? Sequoyah? Geronimo?
3. Where are the following, and for what is each noted? Alamo? El Capitan? Great Stone Face? Dark and Bloody Ground? Lake of the Woods? Sutter's Mill?
4. What persons are commonly known under the following popular names, and for what reason was the name given to each? Fuss and Feathers? Mad Anthony? Little Giant? Little Mac? Little Magician? Old Bullion? Old Hickory? Mill Boy of the Slashes? Swamp Fox? Marse Robert?
5. For what person or persons were the following places or regions named? Carolina? Cincinnati? Joliet? Louisiana? Houston? Marquette? Martha's Vineyard? Pittsburgh? Seattle? Virginia?
6. Who said the following, and under what circumstances? "We must all hang together, or we shall all hang separately." "First in war, first in peace, and first in the hearts of his countrymen." "Let us have peace." "Rum, Romanism, and Rebellion." "We are confronted by a condition—not a theory." "Good enough Morgan till after election." "We have met the enemy and they are ours." "Unconditional surrender. I shall immediately move upon your works." "Let no guilty man escape."
7. How did it happen that George Washington was once taken prisoner by the French?
8. How did Lincoln prepare and deliver his Gettysburg speech, and what was the effect of it at the time?
9. What were the three most important battles on land or on water in the Civil War, and why were they the most important?
10. What is the origin of the name "Mormon," and how and why did the Mormons go out to Utah?
11. Why was the American army withdrawn from Cuba after the capture of Santiago?
12. When and how was the Washington Monument in Washington constructed?

PERFECT FILAMENT CONTROL

Detector and amplifier vacuum tubes work at highest efficiency when their filaments are at precisely the correct temperature. If the filament temperature is just a trifle above this point the effect of the tube is greatly affected and reduced.

It is essential that your radio equipment is provided with efficient means of vacuum filament control.

The illustration shows a very reliable graphite compression rheostat that is something new in its line. It consists of a column of specially treated graphite disks through which the current flows.

Pressure is applied to the graphite column with a screw, which varies the resistance very finely without steps and jumps usually found in wire wound resistances.

RESISTANCE AND CONDUCTANCE

In a previous article of the present series we showed by the analogy of friction in a pipe wherein a stream of water was flowing that a similar condition exists in a circuit of electricity. The flow of current through a circuit is opposed by a property of the circuit called its resistance, which is usually designated in diagrams by the symbol "R." This resistance is determined by the kinds of materials of which the circuit is made up, and also by the form, that is, length and cross section of the various portions of the circuit. Provided that the current is constant the resistance will be constant, not varying with the current flowing through the circuit. This important relation is called ohm's law and will be discussed in a later article.

All substances may be grouped according to their ability to conduct electricity. Those through which current passes readily are called "conducting materials," or conductors, while those through which current passes with great difficulty, in fact hardly at all, are called "insulating materials," or "insulators" and "non-couductors." However, there is no known substance which admits current without any opposition whatever, nor is there any known substance through which some small current cannot be made to pass. There is no sharp distinction between the two groups as they merge gradually one into the other. Nevertheless it should be borne in mind that conductors have a conducting power which is enormously greater than the conducting power of an insulator. The minute current which can be forced through an insulator under certain circumstances is called "leakage current." An ideal insulator would be one which would allow absolutely no current to flow. Examples of good conductors are metals and liquids, conductors of a class known as "electrolytes."

Examples of good insulators are dry gases, glass, porcelain, hard rubber and various waxes, resins and oils, which are again compounded and known by various trade names.

Predicts New War Result Evacuation

ATHENS, Oct. 12.—"The evacuation of Thrace by the Greeks will probably sow the seeds of a new war, perhaps not far in the future," declared Foreign Minister Cannell Oupoi today.

Newspapers had prepared the public for the facts. They referred to it as an "unavoidable evil."

A decree of martial law was drawn up and submitted to King George, but has not yet been put into effect. It was feared that news of the Near East armistice might lead to rioting, making martial law necessary.

GREWSOME MISTAKE

A few days ago Sebastino Raccina, of Trenton, N. J., bought a family lot in the cemetery and arranged to transfer the body of his wife from another grave to it. She had died in 1918. When the grave was opened the body of a man occupied the coffin, instead of that of a woman. The cemetery company is unable to find the body of Mrs. Raccina and is now defendant in a $10,000 damage suit for negligence.

Uncle Wiggily Bedtime Stories
— By Howard R. Garis —

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE GREEN CARPET

"We really must get a new one! Yes, we certainly need a new one!" exclaimed Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy one morning, soon after Uncle Wiggily had finished his breakfast of carrot pancakes with turnip maple sugar sprinkled around the edges.

"What is it we must get new, Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy?" asked Uncle Wiggily, as he twinkled his pink nose. "I hope it isn't a new bungalow, for this is going to be a hard winter and hard times and I don't want to make a new bungalow if we can help it."

"Oh, the bungalow is all right, very nice in fact," spoke the muskrat lady housekeeper; "but we do need a new carpet for the living room. The old one is full of holes and—"

"Well, if it is only full of holes I guess we'll have to make it do until spring," said Mr. Longears. "I don't want to buy a new carpet with hard times coming, and really we should not be fussy about a few holes."

"Oh, it isn't fussiness!" quickly said Nurse Jane. "But if I trip and stumble in one of the old carpet holes, and fall down and break a leg, I can't get your meals or wash the dishes."

"Oh, that's different!" quickly exclaimed the rabbit gentleman. "I'll see about getting a new carpet at once. Not because you might not be able to get my meals if you broke your leg, Nurse Jane, but because I don't want you to be hurt. I'll hop away and see what I can do about a new carpet."

Uncle Wiggily twinkled his pink nose and hopped over the fields and through the woods. He was thinking and thinking of how he could get a new carpet for Nurse Jane when he didn't have the money.

"And the worst of it is," said Uncle Wiggily, "that none of my friends have any money to spare for new carpets. I can't ask Grandpa Goosey Gander, for he told me he had spent almost his last dollar for cornmeal to keep his family all winter. And Uncle Butter, the goat, hasn't any spare money, either. I wonder what I can do? I don't like an old carpet, any more than Nurse Jane does, and I don't want her tripping and catching her paw in holes in the old carpet. Oh, dear, I wish I were rich!"

Of course, once upon a time, as I have told you before, Uncle Wiggily found his fortune, and was a very rich rabbit—as rich rabbits go—but he had given away so much to his friends that, for a time, he was quite poor.

So, thinking and thinking and thinking of how he might get a new carpet, Uncle Wiggily hopped on through the woods until, all of a sudden, he felt himself caught up so quickly that he nearly fell down.

"My goodness!" exclaimed the bunny. "I guess I caught my paw in a loop of wild grape vine on the ground. That's the way Nurse Jane might catch her paw in a hole of the old carpet."

Uncle Wiggily scrambled up and was about to hop on, rather laughing to think how he had stumbled, when he felt himself still held tightly, and a voice hissed in his ear:

"Now I have you!"

It was the Woozie Wolf! And indeed the bad chap had caught Uncle Wiggily. The Wolf had been hiding in the bushes. He had thrust out his leg, tripped up the bunny and then had grabbed him.

"Now for some ear nibbles!" howled the Wolf. He was leaning over the bunny, to nibble his ears when, all at once, another harsh voice asked:

He landed as softly as on a feather bed.

"What about me? Don't I get any nibbles?"

There was the Fuzzy Fox!

"Ho! I guess you don't get any nibbles when I caught Uncle Wiggily myself by tripping him!" sneered the Wolf. "Don't think for a moment, Mr. Fox, that I'm going to catch rabbits for you to nibble!"

"Well, if I can't have rabbit to nibble I'll have yours!" howled the Fox, and he made a jump to nip the Wolf.

"Oh, ho! Two can play at that game!" growled the Wolf. "If you nip me I'll nip you!"

But to do this the Wolf had to let go of Uncle Wiggily, and as soon as the two cross, bad animals were nipping each other Uncle Wiggily knew just what to do.

"I'll give a big jump and get away!" he thought to himself. So he gave a big jump up into the air. "Oh, when I come down, as far away as I can, I am going to land hard—very hard!" thought poor Uncle Wiggily. "I'll come down very hard and I may sprain my pink nose! But that is better than being nibbled!"

Up went the bunny, jumping far away from the bad animals. But when he came down he landed as softly as on a feather bed!

"How is this?" he asked, as far off in the woods, he heard the Fox and Wolf fighting. "What is this soft stuff I landed on?" And when he looked he found he had landed on a feather bed.

"Oh, ho! Now I have an idea!" laughed the bunny. "I can take a lot of this soft, green moss and make a new carpet for Nurse Jane. I'll carpet the living room with green moss! Hurray for the new green carpet!"

And when the moss green carpet was laid, with the help of Uncle Wiggily's animal friends, Nurse Jane said it was the nicest carpet she could have wished for.

"And it didn't cost a penny!" chuckled the rabbit.

So everything ended happily, and if the cream puff doesn't try to blow out the electric light and leave the moving pictures in the dark, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's rainy day.

'WAY TO THE RIGHT

It was the first time the two dusky ex-stevedores had met since the war, and they were comparing their more recent personal history.

"Mose," announced Rastus, "Ah's got a good job now."

"Yo' got a good job? Whah at?"

"Ah's got a job being' p'fessor of pathology to a college."

"Huccum, p'fessor of pathology, big boy. Yo' kain't read nor write."

"Seems lak yo' won' know what is it a p'fessor of pathology. Lemme 'lucidate. A p'fessor of pathology is de p'fessor what shows de folkses how to go in an' out of de college grounds."

MODUS OPERANDI

The rookie was grumbling about some dirt in his food—for he was at the tender age of rookiehood before the time when a little dirt is necessary to lend the proper savor.

"Smatter?" bellowed the mess officer. "Stop whining. Don't you know you're here to serve your country?"

"Yes, sir," was the humble reply, "but not to eat it. And I wanted to serve it—not have it served to me."

TREAT FOR BOARDERS

It was in the thriftiest of all thrifty boarding houses.

"Mother," asked the landlady's daughter, "what shall I do with these basting threads?"

"Give them to me," was the reply, "and I'll stir them into the frosting for the cocoanut cake."

AND THAT GOES

Buck—Can you give a definition of an orator?

Private—Sure. He's a fellow that's always ready to lay down your life for his country.

A PENNY SAVED

For many minutes there had been a violent ringing at the night bell of a pharmacy until finally the druggist, who lived above, sleepily crawled into his clothes and went downstairs. At the door he was confronted by a son of auld Scotland.

"Five cents' worth of bicarbonate of soda for indigestion, if ye please," the latter requested.

"A nickel's worth of bicarbonate of soda at this time of night?" exploded the druggist. "Getting me up for that when a glass of hot water would have done just as well!"

"Weel, weel," returned the Scot, pocketing his money. "I thank ye for the advice, and I'll no bother ye after all. Good nicht!"

TELL THE TRUTH

An Irishman, going through a cemetery, read the inscription:

"I Still Live."

"Well," he declared after ruminating awhile, "if I was dead I'd own up to it."

VESSELS RUSH TO STEAMSHIP AFIRE

Passengers Desert Ship and Are Afloat on Sea In Small Boats

transport Thomas will be the first to reach the passengers and crew who sought safety in the small boats. No further word has come from the City of Honolulu following her abandonment and it is not known whether she had gone down or whether she was still a blazing wreck.

Get First News

The first news of the fire came in a radio message at 5:30 o'clock picked up by the naval station here. It merely stated the vessel was afire and was not an S. O. S.

No further news came to shore although the City of Honolulu radio operator was heard communicating with other vessels including the Enterprise, the Wilhelmina, the United States transport Thomas and a sister ship, the City of Los Angeles.

Then, with unexpected suddenness, shortly before 9 o'clock came the news that the fire had gained such headway as to force abandonment of the ship.

Former German Vessel

The vessel is the former German vessel Huron and was acquired from the shipping board recently by the Los Angeles Steamship company for traffic between the southern port and the Hawaiian islands.

She sailed October 7 from Honolulu and was expected to arrive at San Pedro some time tomorrow.

The position of the vessel was given as latitude 31.07 north and longitude 131.40 west.

R. V. Crowder, general passenger agent for the Los Angeles Steamship company, is aboard as a passenger.

The vessel has accommodations for about 250 passengers, but due to the peak of the tourist season being over she was returning with many cabins empty.

She had a full cargo of freight for Los Angeles.

The City of Honolulu is a famous vessel well-known on the Atlantic seaboard as the former Hamburg-American liner Freiderich der Gross, plying between New York and Hamburg. She is of 10,777 dead weight tons and was built in 1896 at Stettin, Germany, by the Act Ges Vulcan Shipbuilding corporation.

During the war the vessel was refitted and placed in transport service, being renamed the Huron. She had been recently completely overhauled and refitted by the Los Angeles Steamship company at San Pedro at a cost of nearly $1,000,000.

Man of 85 Murders His Roommate, 80

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 12.—Because Armond Muller, 80, his roommate at the Rief home for twenty years, made faces at him, August Rief, 85, today occupies a cell at the city prison—the oldest prisoner ever charged with murder in the local courts.

Rief is very deaf. He says Muller made faces at him and he struck him not more than twice with his cane. Muller was found unconscious and died shortly afterward.

Unique Scheme to Keep Mine Going

AADENA, Ohio—The prize for unique methods of operating coal mines since the ending of the recent nationwide strike is claimed by the Adena section of the eastern Ohio coal fields.

Mike Kusic, of Lansing, opened a mine during the strike. He had it ready to begin loading when settlement was effected. It is operated by electricity—as are practically all mines now—the generator, owned by the Cadiz-Fairmont Coal company, of which Kusic is head, is driven by a threshing machine engine, owned by another man.

The engine's owner has another traction engine in reserve which he can place in service by moving it alongside the mine on the hillside in two hours, in the event of a breakdown of his novel generating combine.

The mine is situated between East Cadiz and Adena.

Identity of Infant Abandoned Solved

The identity of the abandoned baby was disclosed yesterday to Col. J. D. Fraser, chief of the Glendale police department.

Rev. W. Cullen Wilcox of 1110 Esperanza street, Los Angeles, came to Glendale yesterday afternoon and positively identified the eight-month-old boy as a baby he and his wife had in their charge until the day it was abandoned.

Ivan Tarasoff, who formerly lived at 425 South Fremont street and later at 1251 Ogden street, Los Angeles, is the father of the baby, according to Rev. Cullen. He is of the opinion that the father, who is a plasterer by occupation, is well able to support the child but did not care to do so. For this reason the Cullen family agreed to board and care for the baby for a stipulated sum each month. When Mr. Tarasoff fell about six weeks behind in his payments he was notified to get the baby. This he did the day before it was found in Glendale.

A search is now under way in Los Angeles to locate Mr. Tarasoff who seems to have moved to regions unknown.

Mrs. Lucy D. Rice of Pasadena, social worker for the county department of charities, is said to have the full data on the baby.

Report Friction In Murder Case Probe

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Oct. 12.—Evidences of friction between the state police and the Somerset and Middlesex county authorities developed today in the investigation of the murder of Rev. Dr. Edward W. Hall, wealthy rector of the Protestant Episcopal church of St. John the Evangelist, and his beautiful choir leader, Mrs. James Mills.

The state police began a separate investigation independent of that of the county and municipal authorities. It is said to involve four persons, all related to the victims, three men and a woman.

It is reported that Governor Edwards would be asked to send Attorney-General McCran to New Brunswick to take absolute charge of the investigation.

New evidence has come to light in the finding of a blood-stained potato knife and the remains of a burned automobile.

Public feeling against the arrest of 19-year-old Clifford Hayes is still running high here. A report was circulated that another arrest might be made today that would result in the clearing of Hayes' name.

Filipino Influx to Hawaii Alarms Japs

PREPARE TO TEST DRY SHIP RULING

Make Plans to Get Court Decision on Order of Attorney General

By W. H. ATKINS
For International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12. — Attorneys for the Anchor and Cunard Steamship companies were expected today to confer with Attorney-General Daugherty with respect to their efforts to set aside the ruling of the department of justice barring intoxicating liquors from foreign ships in American waters.

The attorney-general and his associates are prepared to make a test case of the proceedings brought by the Cunard line so that the way may be cleared for the United States supreme court to render a final decision on the validity of the Daugherty opinion, and the subsequent orders of President Harding for the treasury department to enforce the national prohibition act.

Some officials of the department of justice were of the opinion that a temporary order would be issued in New York, restraining prohibition officials from seizing liquor stocks within the three-mile zone. If such an order is granted, the attorney-general will be required to show cause why a permanent injunction should not be granted and will immediately begin the fight which will end only with a decision by the supreme court.

It was officially announced at the treasury department that no orders would be issued to prohibition agents to seize foreign ships found to be transporting liquor when the three-mile limit is reached. The officers will be told to take possession of the liquor, but not to attempt to seize the vessel.

REALTY MEN ARE TOLD NEW IDEAS

W. Ross Campbell Speaks on "Prospects" Before Local Board Members

ing carefully," said Mr. Campbell, not to please ourselves, but to reach the prospects we desire."

Publicity Power

The powerful influence of publicity was outlined by Mr. Campbell when he stated that it was often difficult to say that a certain salesman sold property, for perhaps publicity of some sort had sold the prospect before he came in contact with the salesman.

The need for specializing in real estate as in other things was pointed out to the members. By that method prospects can be given better service, the company in turn profiting.

"You should study the prospect and sell him what he needs not what you think is a big bargain. "A good way to get new business, is to call on the people we have already done business with, and at least say 'hello" every now and then."

By following methods of keeping in touch with past customers, new prospects are created that are already 50 per cent sold before they get in touch with the real estate man, said the speaker.

People Are Salesmen

"That makes salesmen for us out of the people," said Mr. Campbell.

That Southern California would have unlimited prosperity for years to come, was the prediction made by the speaker, who declared that people were coming at the rate of 100,000 each year, and required things that the real estate man can furnish.

As a closing bit of advice to the members, Mr. Campbell said:

"We must be optimistic about prospects, and believe in ourselves. Then they will believe in us."

FEDERATION FOR COMMUNITY PLAN

Service Project Is Endorsed at Meeting; Bond Issue Under Discussion

finding a decided place during the war. The plan as explained by Mr. White would be to organize the community for recreation purposes. He said "We provide for the young people until they graduate from high school and then they are thrown on their own responsibilities. We know that young people are going to have recreation, but the problem is whether they will have the right kind of recreation."

Various lines of activity included under "Community Service" as given by Mr. White were the athletics, community musical organizations, such as community orchestras, choruses, etc., dramatic clubs, etc.

Don T. Orput, representative of the National Community Service organization, was present and stated that in a little over two years more than 200 cities have developed a community service program. He asked that a committee of two from each association be appointed as a community service educational committee. It was voted that the federation endorse the "Community Service" program. A motion prevailed that the association presidents and chairmen of playground committee be appointed to serve on the committee suggested by Mr. Orput.

George U. Moyse, principal of Glendale Union High school, gave an outline of the coming high school bond election on October 20, and told of the overcrowded condition of the high school. He stated that although it might be possible to build a complete high school plant for the $600,000 which was voted at the last bond election, yet this plan was not advisable, inasmuch as by the time the building would be completed in September, 1924, it would already be inadequate to care for the increased attendance. He said "In June it was found that the average attendance at the high school showed an increase of 42 per cent over the preceding year and the rate of increase this year is fully as large or larger than last year. The enrollment now is almost 500 more than at the beginning of last year. On account of the limited bonding capacity of the district at the time of the last election the issue was placed at $600,000."

Various questions in regard to the bond election were discussed. Mr. White stated that in the development of the elementary school system it will make a big difference whether the present high school site can ge secured for an intermediate or junior high school, taking care of the seventh, eighth and ninth grades, and using the present Wilson avenue intermediate building for an elementary school. Otherwise, he stated, it would be necessary to make a large addition to the elementary school system. This plan, he stated, had been endorsed by the high school and grammar school boards.

Mrs. John Robert White announced the Red Cross drive for membership to begin November 11 and continue until November 30, when a house to house canvass will be made and asked that the members of the federation volunteer their services in assisting in the drive.

The federation voted that $25 be allowed for the Glendale Welfare council.

BEAUTY MAY SUE ASA G. CANDLER

Huge Sum of Money Will Be Sought Result of Broken Promise, Plan

By H. C. HAMILTON

For International News Service.

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 12.—Indications were today that a damage suit asking for a staggering sum would be filed shortly by attorneys for Mrs. Onezima de Bouchelle against Asa G. Candler, Atlanta capitalist, who has often been referred to as the "richest man in the south."

Counsel for the New Orleans beauty who Tuesday announced her engagement to the aged millionaire had been broken because of reflections on her character, announced today that Mrs. De Bouchelle will return tonight to New Orleans, but that Harry Gamble of New Orleans, her personal attorney, will remain here to consider legal steps.

Demanding that he reveal the name of the person who told him that she had invited two traveling salesmen to visit her at an Atlanta hotel, Mrs. De Bouchelle, who on Tuesday announced she had broken her engagement to Candler, today made public a letter to the aged capitalist. The letter was written on September 28.

Democrats to Meet Against Woolwine

A mass meeting of Democrats and other voters will be held Friday night at 8 o'clock, Trinity auditorium, corner of Ninth and Grand avenue, Los Angeles, to hear Rev. Bob Schuler, pastor Trinity Methodist church; Nathan Newby, Esq., of Los Angeles, Charles C. Crouch of San Diego, and other speakers give their reasons for not supporting Thomas Lee Woolwine for governor. The meeting is held under the auspices of the Anti-Woolwine-for-Governor Democratic club of Los Angeles, of which Henry M. McDonald is president. The speakers will all be prominent Democrats, although the meeting is open to all citizens. Referring to this mass meeting, Mr. McDonald said:

"The hour has come when good Democrats in order to be good Americans must repudiate their own candidate. As Democratic citizens, we stand for the enforcement of the law, for the protection of our constitution and against every agency that would further lawlessness or foster that element which seeks to destroy the constitution of this nation. Mr. Woolwine's stand upon the enforcement of the laws regulating the sale of liquor is repugnant to every loyal Democrat who loves his country and seeks to uphold its statutes. We do not question that his stand upon the liquor question will secure for him many votes, but they are votes that we do not dare, as loyal American citizens, to associate our ballots with. This meeting is in the nature of a protest against his announced platform in order that the people may know why we cannot support him.

"I cast my first vote for Horace Greeley, Democratic candidate for the presidency, in 1872, and have since voted for every Democratic presidential candidate. I have, also, always voted for Democratic gubernatorial candidates, except in 1906, when I voted against William Randolph Hearst, candidate for governor of the state of New York. I intend to again break my record of Democratic consistency by voting for Friend W. Richardson."

Near East Meeting Will Be Arranged

PARIS, Oct. 12.—Representatives of Great Britain and France will meet at Boulogne next week to arrange the details of the Near East peace conference, it was stated today by the Petit Parisien.

Scutari was selected by Lord Curzon, British foreign secretary, and Premier Poincare on September 23, the day the Anglo-French note was sent to Angora, but since then objections have arisen on the part of the French that Scutari is too isolated.

Both the French and Italians are now insisting that some Italian city, probably Venice, be selected.

One Killed, 2 Others Hurt In Auto Crash

NEW YORK, Oct. 12. — One man was killed and two others severely injured when a powerful racing automobile crashed into a tree on Riverside drive early today. According to the police, the car was the property of Barney Oldfield, famous racer.

The dead man was identified as James F. Degnan, chauffeur. The injured men are Edward O'Donnell and Edward L. McKee. O'Donnell may die.

The police are inclined to believe that the machine was stolen from Oldfield either here or in Los Angeles, Cal., where he lives.
